

JCOM 476/576
Strategic Social Media
Client Expectations

Thank you for your interest in working with the students in J480/580 Strategic Social Media! This is one of my favorite classes to teach. I'm looking for organizations to serve as clients for the fall quarter — October - early December.

The students will work on two major projects during the term. The first is a listening and monitoring report that includes a competitor analysis and influencer identification. The second part is an in-depth social media audit and a social media plan based on that audit.

The class focuses on the research and planning necessary to create a great social media strategy. It's a great fit for organizations with robust social media (at least two active platforms and 5,000 fans/friends/followers) that want a fresh look and some recommendations for their existing strategy. It's not a good fit for launching social media or creating a strategy from scratch (we have other classes that can do that).

Here's what you can expect:

- Students will begin their projects in by mid-October. At that point they'll need to meet with you either in person or by Zoom/video connection. I prefer to have some kind of face-to-face - even if it's virtual.
- The first part of the projects is all external research, so they won't need much from you after that initial phone call.
- Once they begin the second part of the project (the audit/plan), they will need to get access to your social media data. This can be through exported reports or through direct access with passwords.
- In between, the project is largely self driven. They may have occasional questions for you or points of clarification. I also encourage them to check in with you weekly even if they don't need anything.
- The final deliverable is a slide deck with the data from the audit and a plan highlights, plus a document with the plan and related appendices (e.g. social media calendar).
- The students will present their work to you at the end of the term.

I have a few simple expectations for clients:

- Students will need access to your social media data through native platforms, third-party measurement tools or exported reports that provide detailed info for, at minimum, July 1 - September 30, 2024. (Ideally more time, but that's the minimum) Note: The students cannot do their project without data. If you anticipate issues, please let me know early so we can make arrangements. It is possible for you to run reports vs. providing access. I can help with that and provide the parameters they'll need.
- The students can sign basic NDAs if necessary and we talk about the responsibility of having access to client accounts.

I'm still working on the final syllabus and will share that and the course website when it's complete.
(You can see last year's content at: www.sojcsm.com)

Please let me know if you have any questions!

Kelli Matthews
Sr. Instructor, Public Relations
School of Journalism & Communications
University of Oregon
kmatthew@uoregon.edu
541.579.5888 (call or text)